DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claim 45 is objected to because of the following informalities:
 - a. The limitation “the releasable locking means” lacks proper antecedent basis in the claims. This limitation was first recited in claim 41, but claim 45 depends from claim 40. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 30, 36, 40 and 42-45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Caskey 5,163,565.

Caskey discloses a grain cleaner including:

- a frame work (Fig. 1)
- a grain inlet (2)
- a grain cleaning means (1)
- a grain outlet (Fig. 1A)

The grain cleaning means is an indent cylinder (1) with an inner surface having a plurality of indentations (10). The cylinder is formed of outer sheet material (column 5, line 24) mounted about an inner frame (Fig. 1A where 1 meet the axis).

Regarding claim 42, the inner perforated line and the cylindrical wall can be separated from each other by when removed from the frame by removing the glue or bolts which attached them together (Column 5, lines 26-28).

Regarding claim 43, the cylinder includes an inner perforated liner (10 and 12 combined) made of a polymeric material (Column 5, lines 25-26).

Regarding claim 44, even though the inner perforated liner is held by glue or bolts to the cylindrical wall, friction also inherently exists between them.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. Claims 31-33, 37-39, 41 and 45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Caskey in view of Yetter 3,455,452.

Caskey discloses the device described above. However, Caskey does not disclose how the outer cylindrical wall is formed and attached to the frame.

Like Caskey, Yetter discloses a grain cleaner with a cylinder. Unlike Caskey, Yetter discloses that the cylinder is formed from placing a sheet of wire mesh around the frame and securing it with frame with split metal bands (16) tightened by bolts (15). These split metal bands are a releasable locking means.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to secure the outer sheet of the cylinder in Caskey to the frame with releasable locking means as in Yetter, as one well known means of attaching a cylinder to a frame.

Regarding claims 32 and 38, the cylinder includes an inner perforated liner (10 and 12 combined) made of a polymeric material (Column 5, lines 25-26).

Regarding claims 33, 39 and 45, the inner perforated liner is secured to the outer sheet along an edge adjacent one of the opposite edges accommodating the locking means since it is secured all over by glue (Column 5, lines 27).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. Claim 46 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Caskey in view of Brye 2,138,021.

Caskey discloses the claimed invention except that the inner perforated liner is not attached to the outer wall only at one edge.

Like Caskey, Brye discloses an inner liner (8) inside an outer wall (4) in a grain separator. Unlike Caskey, Brye teaches that it is desirable that the inner liner be easily removable and replaceable (Lines 12-19). Brye attaches the inner liner to the outer wall only at the edges.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to attach the inner liner of Caskey to the outer wall only as one edge since Brye teaches that fewer attachments make replacement of the liner easier.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed 2/14/2005 with respect to claims 30 and 36 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Art Unit: 3671

Applicant argues that Caskey does not disclose a cylinder that is wrapped around the frame. Merriam Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, 10th edition defines wrapped as, "to cover esp. by winding or folding." As seen in Fig. 1B, the cylinder in Caskey covers the frame and therefore, wraps around the frame.

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 31-33 and 37-39 have been considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection. These claims are now rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103 above.

8. New claims 40-46 are rejected as above.
